COMPILER'S PREFACE.

THE Library Committee having requested me, while Parliamentary Librarian, to undertake the preparation of a Supplementary Catalogue of books added to the Library since 1864, it has been my endeavor, in carrying out their wishes, to perform the task entrusted to me with accuracy and fidelity.

In the following pages, the names of the different authors are arranged alphabetically ; and where a work has been published anonymously, the title has been entered in a way to indicate the subject-matter of the book. The alphabetical method of arrangement was adopted at the suggestion of the Library Committee, who considered that form to be the simplest and most convenient for the ordinary purposes of reference. It was originally my intention to have inserted, not only the room and compartment, but also the shelf in which every book is to be found ; but the Committee, while approving of the plan, were of opinion that the publication of these details would unnecessarily prolong and increase the labor of the work. There were similar reasons against the preparation of a Classified Catalogue. The delay in the present issue has arisen, partly from a desire on my own part to render it as correct as possible, for which purpose I was obliged, in a large number of cases, to undertake the tedious and laborious process of referring to the books themselves ; and partly from causes over which I had no control. The postponement of the publication, however, has enabled me to bring the Catalogue down to the end of January in the present year.

I have appended a list of the additions to the Library since the earlier sheets were printed off, and have also added a list of the newspapers and periodicals currently received, and a copy of the Rules for the Regulation of the Library.

The number of volumes embraced by the Supplementary Catalogue is about 15,000 volumes ; which, added to the 20,000 previously in the Library, make the whole collection amount to 35,000 volumes. This number is in excess of that of the present Library of the House of Commons, and includes, besides, a greater variety of authors.

The Parliamentary Library of Victoria, containing as it does a complete and comprehensive selection of standard works in every department of literature, may safely challenge comparison with other libraries of the same size in any part of the world. As a national institution of great practical utility, it reflects the highest credit upon the liberality of Parliament, which called it into existence, and upon the sound judgment of the different Committees and librarians, under whose management the collection has attained its present satisfactory position.

In conclusion, I have to acknowledge, with many thanks, the valuable assistance received during the progress of the work from the Members of the Library Committee, and from Messrs. Tulk and James Smith, who kindly revised the printed proofs. Their suggestions, wisely and courteously offered, have added considerably to the correctness of the entries. I have also to thank Mr. Dopping, the present Librarian, and his officers, for the ready help they have always afforded whenever I found it necessary to apply to them for information; and I cannot in justice overlook the important assistance I have received from Mr. Brain who read the proofs and revises with me.

A. G. DUMAS.

HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT, MELBOURNE,

RULES FOR THE REGULATION

OF THE

PARLIAMENT LIBRARY.

1. Members may not take out more than six volumes at any one time ; and in every case are requested to report the books taken to the Librarian, or Clerk, that they may be entered in a book to be kept for that purpose.

2. Seven days are allowed for each octavo volume ; but unless the same is enquired for, a strict compliance with this rule will not be insisted on. In the case of books newly received, they shall be given out in the order in which they were applied for, and must not be kept for more than four days.

3. Valuable illustrated works, maps and books of reference generally, are not to be removed out of the Parliament Buildings.

4. Overdue books which have been written for must be returned within three days at furthest.

5. Once in each year the Librarian shall take an account of stock ; and for that purpose shall address a circular to each Member, who has books in his possession, in order that the same may be returned within a given time. After stock is taken, the Librarian shall submit a report to the Library Committee, to which he shall attach a schedule specifying such books as have been lost (if any) during the year, or unduly detained.

6. Any Member losing or defacing any book shall be responsible for the same, or for the set, if it form one of a set.

7. Any works may be purchased for the Library upon the request of a Member of Committee.

8. No Member will be at liberty to take from the Library more than one periodical publication at any time, and a quarterly publication may not be kept for more than one week.

9. No newspapers or periodicals may be removed from the table of the Library during the first month after their receipt.

10. No monthly magazine or other periodical may be kept for more than three days during the first month after such work may have been received into the Library.

11. No stranger will be admitted into the Library unless accompanied by a Member, and then only for the purpose of viewing the Library.

12. No ex-member of Parliament, unless he be an Executive Councillor, is entitled to any of the privileges of the Library.

13. Duplicate works are not to be sold either to Members of the Committee or Officers of the House.

14. The Librarian is required to report to the Library Committee any infringement of these Rules.
